

Christopher Kloeble

Christopher Kloeble

Born 3 July 1982 Edit this on Wikidata (age 42)

Munich Edit this on Wikidata

Website <http://www.christopherkloeble.de/englisch.htm> Edit this on Wikidata

Christopher Kloeble (born 3 July 1982 Munich) is a German writer and screenwriter. He won the 2008 Jürgen Ponto Stiftung prize for best first novel.^{[1][2]}

He is the son of Til Erwig. He grew up in Königsdorf in Upper Bavaria. He was a member of the Tölz Boys' Choir. He studied at Ludwig Maximilians University in Munich and German Literature Institute in Leipzig.^[2]

In June 2010 he read the at the Ingeborg Bachmann Competition. He was Max Kade Writer-in-Residence at Georgetown University.^[3]

Works

[change | change source]

- Amongst Loners, 2008
- Almost Everything Very Fast. 2012 ^{[4][5][6]}
- The Shadows of the Salz Family, 2016
- Home Made In India, 2017.

References

[change | change source]

- ↑ "Christopher Kloeble". Department of German Studies | University of Arizona. 2016-08-27. Archived from the original on 2020-06-13. Retrieved 2020-06-13.
- ↑ ^{2.0} ^{2.1} "Christopher Kloeble — internationales literaturfestival berlin". www.literaturfestival.com. Archived from the original on 2020-06-13. Retrieved 2020-06-13.
- ↑ """HOME MADE IN INDIA:" A CONVERSATION BETWEEN CHRISTOPHER KLOEBLE AND ERIC JAROSINSKI". Deutsches Haus at NYU.
- ↑ "Interview with Author Christopher Kloeble". @GI_weltweit. Archived from the original on 2020-06-13. Retrieved 2020-06-13.
- ↑ "Books". Christopher Kloeble (in German). Retrieved 2020-06-13.
- ↑ "Fiction Book Review: Almost Everything Very Fast by Christopher Kloeble, trans. from the German by Aaron Kerner. Graywolf, $16 trade paper \(320p\) ISBN 978-1-55597-729-0". PublishersWeekly.com.

Retrieved 2020-06-13.

Retrieved from "https://simple.wikipedia.org/w/index.php?title=Christopher_Kloeble&oldid=8918453"